ACAYA, STRONGHOLD TOWN

Acaya, a small hamlet of Vernole just 10 km from Lecce, is perhaps the last example of a fortified city in southern Italy that has retained its original setting of 1600. The name Acaya derives from the supporter of the fortification of the village, which before this urban transformation was called Segine. The protagonist of this fortification was Gian Giacomo d'Acaya, son of Alfonso d'Acaya, who built the walls to strengthen the protection around the buildings wanted by his father, the true initiator of the history of this village. Everything reflects the military approach, from the structure of the walls to the orderly road layout, different from the classic one of the other historical centers usually more tangarbugliati, to get to the presence of the castle, which we will talk about in future editions. A village to be discovered, with its historical importance that contrasts with its smallness.

TODAY, IN HISTORY

A scandal that made the White House tremble. In this way we could define the "Watergate" case that led, 44 years ago, to the resignation of the President of the United States, Richard Nixon, announced live on television. It was August 8, 1974.

Patitari,
The sweet ionian taste

Salento IGT, takes its name from the noble and ancient descendants of Patitari. Family with illustrious men of letters and weapons among its family members. Primitivo in purity aged in oak barrels. Intense ruby red, warm and aromatic scent, full flavor. It encloses the whole Mediterranean area; it is cultivated in the homonymous Patitari estate inside the Camping La Masseria. A lovely red but with a character that suffers from the beneficial influence of the Ionian Sea.

THE CHURCH OF IMMACOLATA IN GALLIPOLI

One of the few churches in the historic center that does not overlook the sea is the Immaculate Conception, to which the Gallipoli are particularly attached, especially in December, during the Christmas holidays, when it becomes a landmark. The importance is linked to the fact that the feast of the Immaculate is one of the fundamental stages along the path leading to Christmas, with the procession organized on the evening of the eve by the confraternity that has its headquarters in the church. After the procession you return home and do the rehearsals for Christmas, with a family dinner. Structurally the church, like the other confraternal oratories, is very simple outside, while the interior has many valuable decorations, all recently restored.
