THINKING, IN TIMES OF SOCIAL MEDIA

In what is known as the global village, where the distances between places and people are reduced to a minimum, digital tools have speeded up this process even more. In recent years, the social partners have become the main players in the communications sector, and have become the preferred means for flexibility and speed. However, they are not free of side effects. Lamberto Maffei, one of the leading international scholars of neuroscience of the Pisa Normal, said that it is strengthening the so-called "collective brain", caused by the spread of equal messages produced by the social and media that use them, reaching thousands of people at once. This damages the critical spirit of each one of us.

TODAY, IN HISTORY

Horoscope, what the stars say

Today's sign for Paolo Fox is the SAGITTARIUS. An important week opens for you in many ways. You will complete a job that you have begun reluctantly. In love, positive situation.

166 years ago, the architect Antonio Gaudi was born in Reus, a town in Catalonia. An exponent of Catalan modernism, he designed the most famous buildings in Barcelona, first and foremost the church of the Sagrada Familia.

Wash the eggplants, dry them and cut them into slices, sprinkle with salt and put them in a colander with a weight on top to drain (for about 2 hours) to make them less bitter. Then flour and put in boiling oil. Leave to dry on a sheet of absorbent paper. Put a slice of mortadella on each slice, a piece of peeled tomato, salt and pepper, wrap and close with a toothpick.

THE UNDERGROUND OIL MILLS OF GALLIPOLI

Who comes to Gallipoli in 2018 does not expect to discover that in the past this city, now home of tourism, was an important center of production, trade and export of olive oil. Testimony of this past are the underground oil mills, underground centers of olive oil production, of which the old town is full. Some, but not all, of these have been recovered and can be visited, perfectly preserved together with all the original instruments for production, as if time had stood still and the machines should, at any moment, be put back into operation. The importance that the city enjoyed thanks to this production is also demonstrated by the presence, until 1923, of numerous offices of vice-consulants of many European nations, interested in trading with this territory to obtain oil, mainly lamp oil. Despite the fact that today Gallipoli has put aside this commercial vocation, oil remains an important product for the whole of Salento, known and appreciated throughout the world. With the wristband service you can visit for free the underground oil mill in Via De Pace.
