MARCHIONNE LEAVES: WHAT SCENARIOS FOR FCA?

The sudden news of Marchionne's retirement as CEO of FCA has surely left everyone speechless. The press release with which the company announced the sudden and unexpected deterioration of the manager's health conditions has also accelerated the transition phase, already started a few days ago. Sergio Marchionne, born in 1952, at the head of the FIAT group since 2004, succeeded in transforming a company close to crash into an international competitor, thanks to his policies of international expansion. Not all of its objectives have been achieved, such as full employment in Italy, but the Italian-Canadian manager has never wavered in the face of his responsibilities, not even when in the midst of industrial restructuring has closed an entire plant, that of Termini Imerese. Among his greatest successes were the resolution with General Motors and the merger with Chrysler, along with the production of models capable of reviving the company, such as the Grande Punto, the Panda and the new 500. Surely Micheal Manley, new A.D., will have the same track traced by his predecessor, but the history and origin of the new manager open scenarios not without doubts about the future of the company.

RECIPE OF TODAY

Figs with almonds

(da velocissimo.it)

Ingredients: 1 kg of figs, almonds, lemon peel, cinnamon, cloves, bay leaves.

Choose beautiful figs, open them in half and let them dry with the pulp facing the sun. Arrange them so that they are ventilated at the bottom, placing them, for example, on a net. When they are dried put in the middle of each one a toasted almond, then grate over a little last lemon, cinnamon, cloves and, if you like, also fennel seeds and dark chocolate. Then close them one by one and bake them until they become golden. Then let them cool down a bit and place them in a clay container and alternate them with layers of bay leaves. Keep them well covered until winter.

SANTA CRISTINA 2018, HERE WE ARE

The shot of the morning firework greets the beginning of the summer feast gallipolina, the event that for years has brought together everyone, near and far, who returned here for the saint of "Steddhra". This was the feast in honor of Santa Cristina, but not only. Lately blurred and reduced to a minimum, thanks to a willing group of people, the feast has taken shape, with glittering musical lights, crackling fireworks on the sea and the joy of bands around the city. So many things to do and see these days, that we will follow and that we will not fail to tell you and report, with legends and stories rooted in the collective history of the city that for four days dresses up in celebration, wearing a bright evening dress, the most beautiful.
