FOOTBALL AS JOB. SINCE WHEN?

With the World Cup dripping up, the final fever rising and the purchase of Ronaldo by Juventus, football does not stop making people talk about it in our country, despite the fact that we are out of the tournament and with the championship on the summer break. The novelty that has aroused the most clamour is certainly the purchase of the Portuguese footballer, even if there have been protests about the excessive price paid. Since when has the sporting dimension of football become business? If we look back in time, the life for the first professional footballer was not all roses and flowers, on the contrary. For Fergus Suter, leaving his job as a stonemason in Scotland to be paid as a footballer by a London team in the second half of the 19th century meant a lot of criticism and indignation, because until then football was only a sport that was practiced only out of passion by students of the best English schools, and that's why we play 11: the dormitories of the schools in question were made up of 10 boys plus the person responsible. From that moment on, however, it began to legitimize the practice of the footballer of the trade, and therefore paid.

TODAY, IN HISTORY

Horoscope, what the stars say

Today's sign is SCORPION. Your search for happiness can be said to have just begun, to continue without making any compromises, straight on your path.

On July 14, 1789, one of the most famous events in history took place: the Parisians rose up, in full revolutionary ferment, targeting the symbol of the despotic power of the time, the Bastille.

RECIPE OF TODAY

Potato croquettes

(da Velocissimo.it)

Ingredients: 1kg potatoes, 330gr flour 00, salt, Breadcrumbs, fresh mint

Boil one kg of potatoes and knead with a third of flour and season with salt. The potatoes must be crushed and kneaded hot. Work the dough adding some fresh mind (if desired) until you reach a good amalgam. Now process the dough until you get pieces similar to the gnocchi and wanting a bit 'longer. Pass them quickly through the breadcrumbs. Fry for a few minutes in boiling oil.

THE WALLS OF GALLIPOLI

The historic centre of Gallipoli is not only an island connected to the mainland by a bridge, it is also a fortified city. The visitor immediately realizes this additional feature already crossing the bridge, at the sight of the imposing manor that served as a fulcrum in the security system of the city. The walls and ramparts did the rest. Today they clearly no longer have that end that they had 500 years ago, yet the walls that still surround the old town inside, despite their age, continue to protect it as much as chin from the sea, when furious seems to want to attack every street and house. The need for this construction emerged after the siege of the Turks of Otranto in 1480, and in fact thanks to them the city was able to withstand numerous sieges, or at least give a hard line to those who then managed to conquer the center, like the Venetians in 1484. Until 1887 they were twice as high, reaching the roofs of the houses, today they are a natural balcony that surrounds the city and allows everyone to overlook the sea.
